CENTRAL

RAILROAD.

This new and popular Railroad is now completed to New Orleans, thirty one miles from Sacramento, and with its connecting Railroads and Stage Coaches, affords the cheapest, best and most expeditious route for travelers to Wash. River, Humboldt, and all parts of California, north of the South Fork of the American River. The Road is constructed in the most substantial manner, and is provided with new First-Class Passenger Cars, which run with a swiftness not equalled by any other road in the United States. It is laid among the best hills, affording delightful views of valley and mountain scenery. Travelers will find every convenience to promote their comfort. Passes taking the early Morning Train at Sacramento, on arrival at New Orleans take the California Stage Co's Coaches, and traveling by the new Dutch Flat Wagon Road, will reach Virginia City in at least Six Hours less time than by any other mode, and will also avoid the tedious and painful mountain and lake journey in the South, including the coal business, performed by the fugitive pilot and Indians, and among grand forests of the towering fir and pine of California. The road follows Downer Lake, a sheet of water of crystal purity, reflecting the snow-capped summits of the surrounding Sierra, among which it has cut a channel ten above the level of the sea.

This new route has been opened at immense expense, and Stages and Trains are rapidly swelling themselves to its unequalled advantages. The line of the Pacific Railroad, the great national highway, is located upon this route, and the extension of the work, which is progressing rapidly, is an increasing feature to be desired. In a few months twenty three miles more will be added to the railroad, which will still further increase its advantages of Speed, Comfort and Safety. Travelers, try the new route, which is destined to be the great highway between the Pacific and Atlantic States.
